InsuranceCom Asia 2017 Insuring the 4th Industrial Revolution

Dr Kai-Uwe Schanz
Conference Moderation
Chairman & Partner, Dr Schanz,
Alms & Company AG

Steam power, electricity and computing each brought revolutionary changes to the risk landscape and the way people live and work. After the loom, the lightbulb and the mainframe, the internet - of things - drives today's 4th Industrial Revolution. The ubiquity of the internet, in combination with structured- and unstructured data from wireless sensors and artificial intelligence are set to translate into an unprecedented degree of connectivity between people, businesses and machines.

The 4th Industrial Revolution promises to dismantle the traditional boundaries between the digital and physical world, offering an entirely new spectrum of opportunities to gather and use of data and information. There is the prospect of quantum leaps in operational efficiency, with sensors being placed almost anywhere, providing businesses with detailed insight into how their processes can be optimised. The flipside is the imperative to cope with a radically different new risk landscape. The internet of things amplifies cyber-risk and the scope for cyber-crime.

Against this exciting backdrop, the conference will explore the insurance industry's ability to capture the opportunities and address the challenges presented by the 4th Industrial Revolution.

As in previous years, InsuranceCom Asia 2017 will offer a holistic and strategic picture which also includes conventional topics from product development, underwriting, distribution and financial reporting.

The 3rd Industrial Revolution is not yet history!

InsuranceCom Asia – The conference platform where decision makers – on invitation only – of Asia and global insurers meet, discuss, exchange experience and shape the industry's future. You are personally invited to participate in this premier exchange and be part of this exclusive community.
