Leaders' Insights – Reimagining Insurance

Prof Dr Peter Maas

Prof of Management at University of St. Gallen

Challenging economic conditions and rising geopolitical tensions have forced business executives to pay attention to the decisions made by central banks around the world and political leaders in specific regions. The insurance market has gone from low inflation, low interest rates and integrated global markets to rising inflation, higher interest rates and increased protectionism.

The fast-changing world is creating many new and evolving risks. Creating innovative solutions to enable customers better dealing with and managing emerging risks constitute a major opportunity for insurers.

The climate crisis is outpacing the speed at which business leaders are shifting. Climate change requires multilateral response. PZU Group and Zurich Insurance strives to be a leader in helping the world better manage climate risk and improve resilience. Are you getting ready to decarbonize profitably?

Digital technologies continue to evolve, the industry has unlocked potential new opportunities to prevent and mitigate risks to make the world more resilient. With access to more granular and even real-time data as a foundation, utilizing Artificial Intelligence (AI) and Machine Learning (ML) is opening up new possibilities for previously inaccessible risk pools, underwriting, risk assessment, claims management and personalized customer experiences.

Demand for talent in the industry remains high as supply dwindles from a rapidly aging and retiring workforce. Leading insurers will have to find ways to augment workforce gaps. Is the use of Tech a solution option?

The conference will provide you with answers and impulses for the challenges in your companies and will once again address and discuss fundamental issues at the highest level. The participants are Senior Executives who have been personally invited.

InsuranceCom AT-CEE – the platform where Senior decision-makers of the Austrian and Central & Eastern Europe Insurance industry meet and exchange their experiences.
